Before we begin...

Best of luck to a very sweet, cute and nice girl. I have enjoyed being in your classes and also knowing you all the way in school. May God bless you in everything you are going to do. Neil

Today when everything seems so rushed, it is easy to neglect the more enduring things of life. As students of George Washington High School, approaching graduation, we owe it to ourselves and those who come after us to pause, if only for a moment, and look back at yesterday and forward toward tomorrow.

We look backward with pride to the heritage left us by our ancestors and the historical progress of our state. We look forward with courage to the future shimmering mysteriously before us in the fourth dimension. In these times we are as moving figures knowing each other for but a moment at the point of departure, and, after a brief encounter, going on alone to an appointed destination.

Thus it is important that we take stock of all that is around us, wander through what was, and wonder at what may be. In the book, THE CAVALIER, we leave our little mark in history and then move onward with the future.

" . . . a stone, a leaf, an unfound door; of a stone, a leaf, a door, and of all the forgotten faces. Which of us has known his brother? Which of us is not forever a stranger and alone?

O waste of loss, in the hot mazes, lost, among bright stars on this most weary unbright cinder, lost! Remembering speechlessly we seek the great forgotten language . . . a stone, a leaf, an unfound door. Where? When?

O lost, and by the wind grieved, ghost, come back again."

Look Homeward Angel

THOMAS WOLFE.

Yesterday...

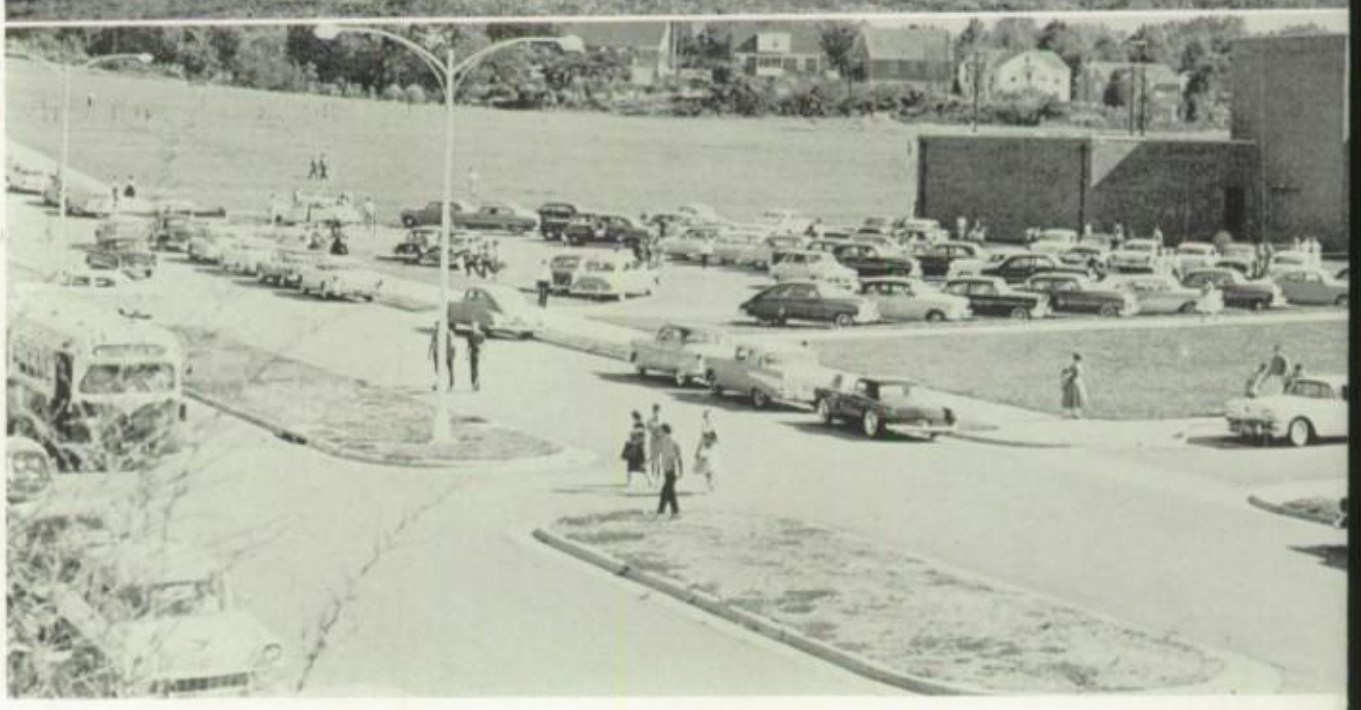
This year marks the beginning of the 100th Anniversary of the War Between the States. Danville played an outstanding role in the great historical drama as the last Capitol of the Confederacy.

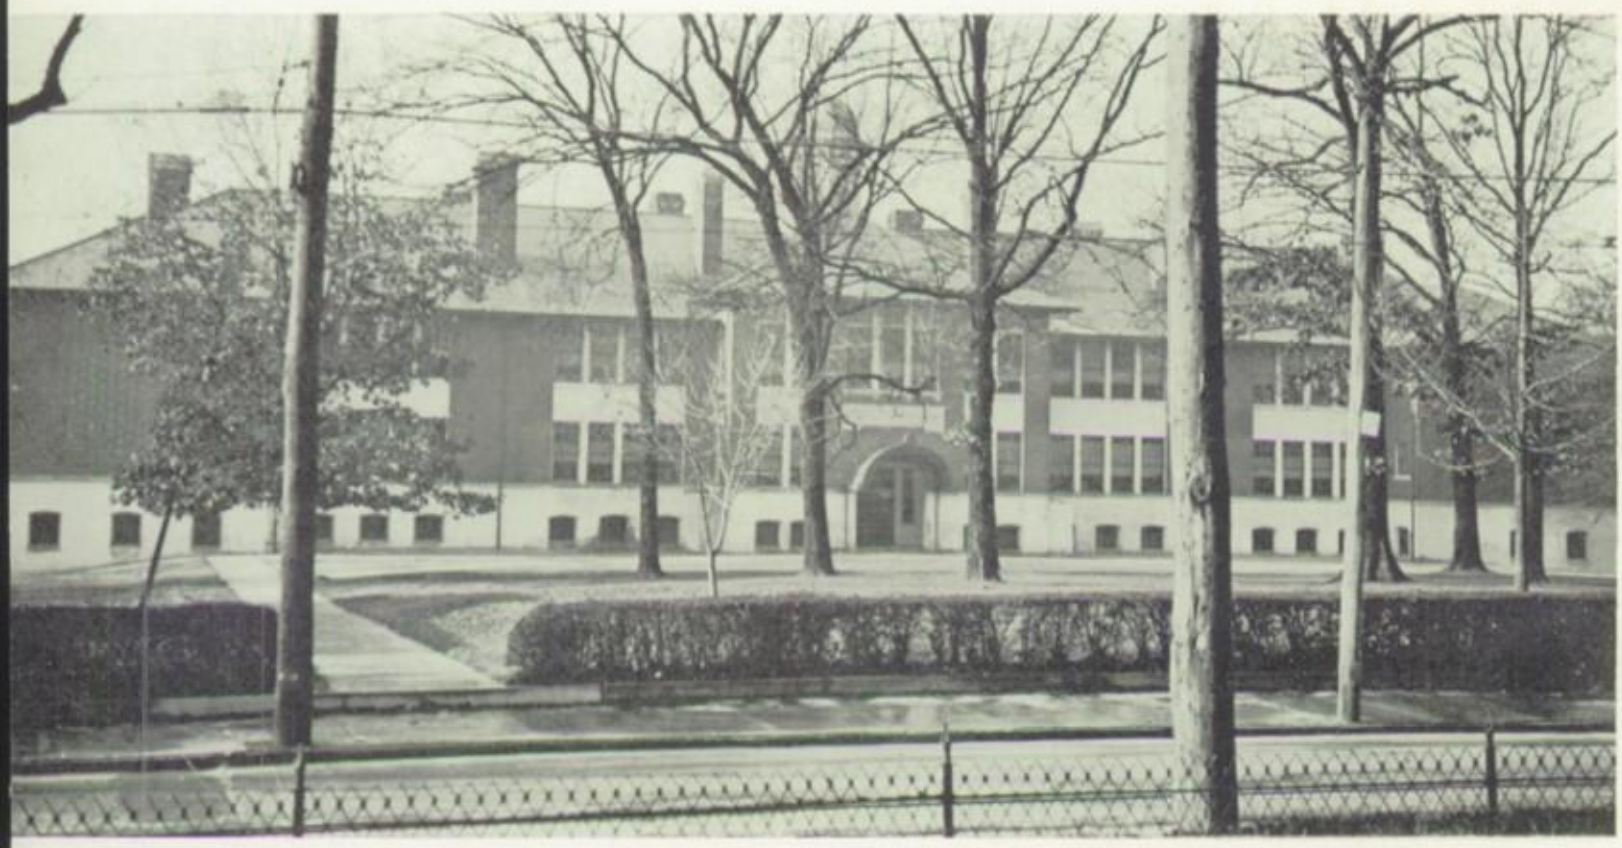
Today one can still see remnants of the war. The home of Major William Sutherlin on Main Street was the building in which Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States of America, sent out his last orders and received word of Lee's surrender to General Grant at Appomattox Court House.

Danville has always been an important city in the southern section of Virginia. At one time it was a trading post for the white men and Indians along the Seminole Trail.

We, the citizens of Danville, are proud of the far-famed history of our city, of its "yesterday."

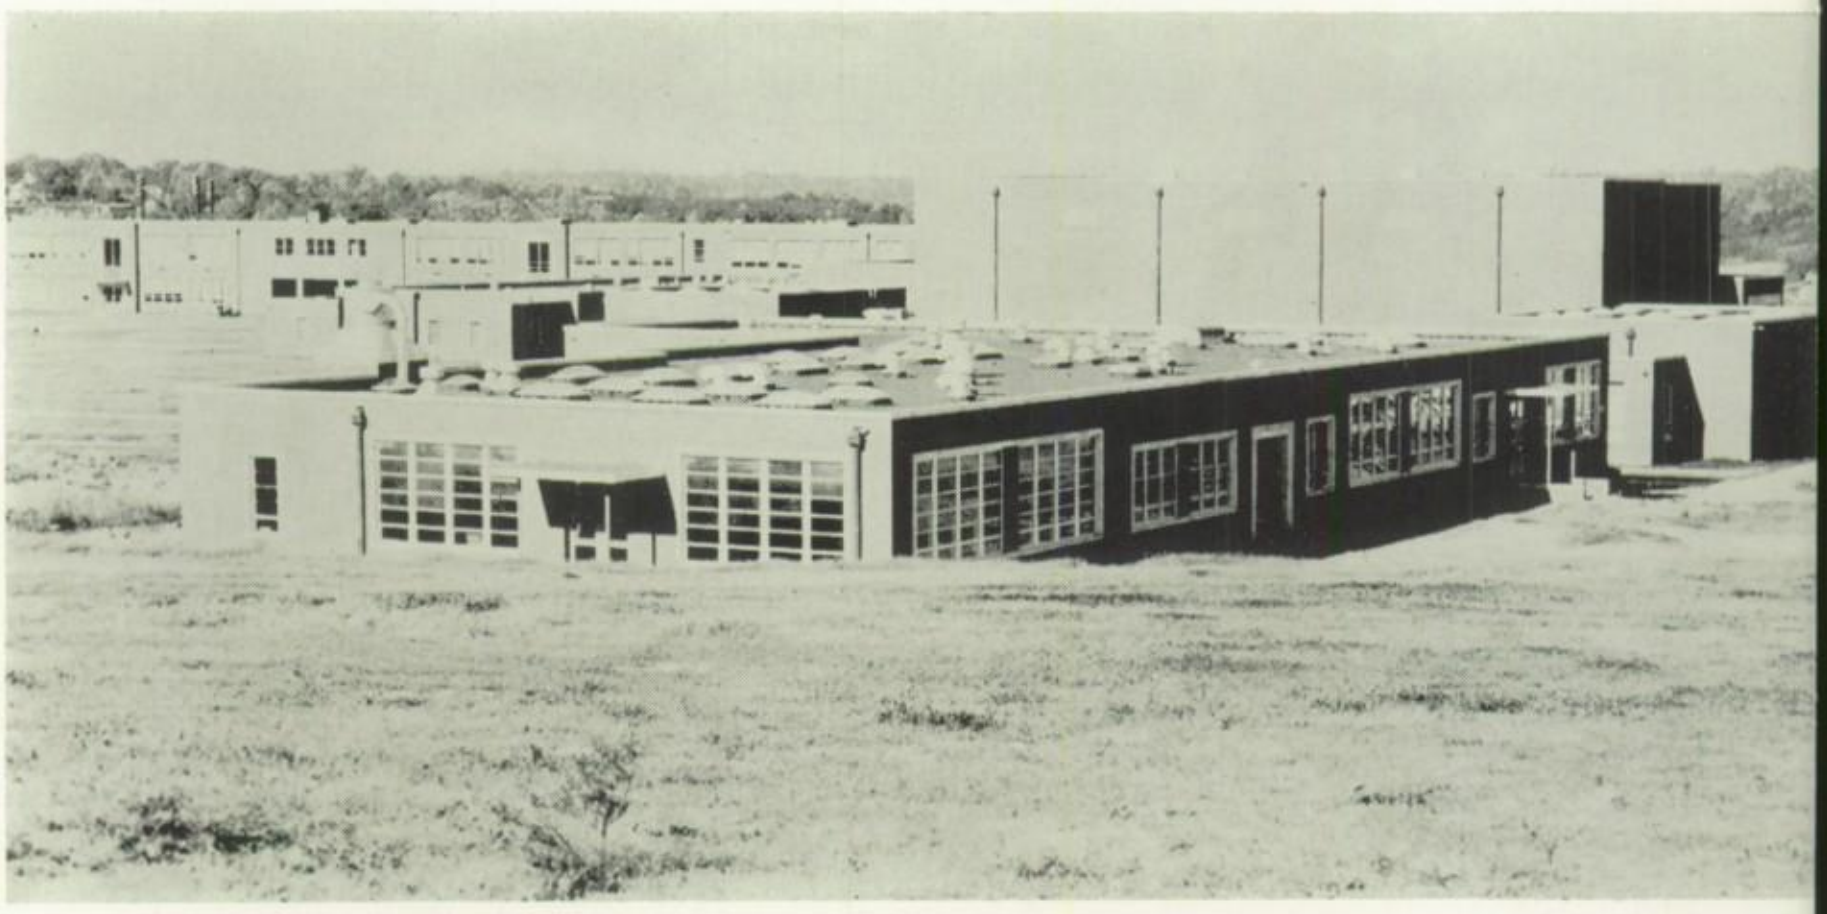
This is the land where our shop building now stands.





Playing the most important part in the school life of Danville's students was the old George Washington High School on Holbrook Avenue.

The Danville Confederate Memorial Building stands as a reminder to us of the War Between the States.



The newest addition to G. W. is the shop building which houses extra classrooms along with splendid equipment.

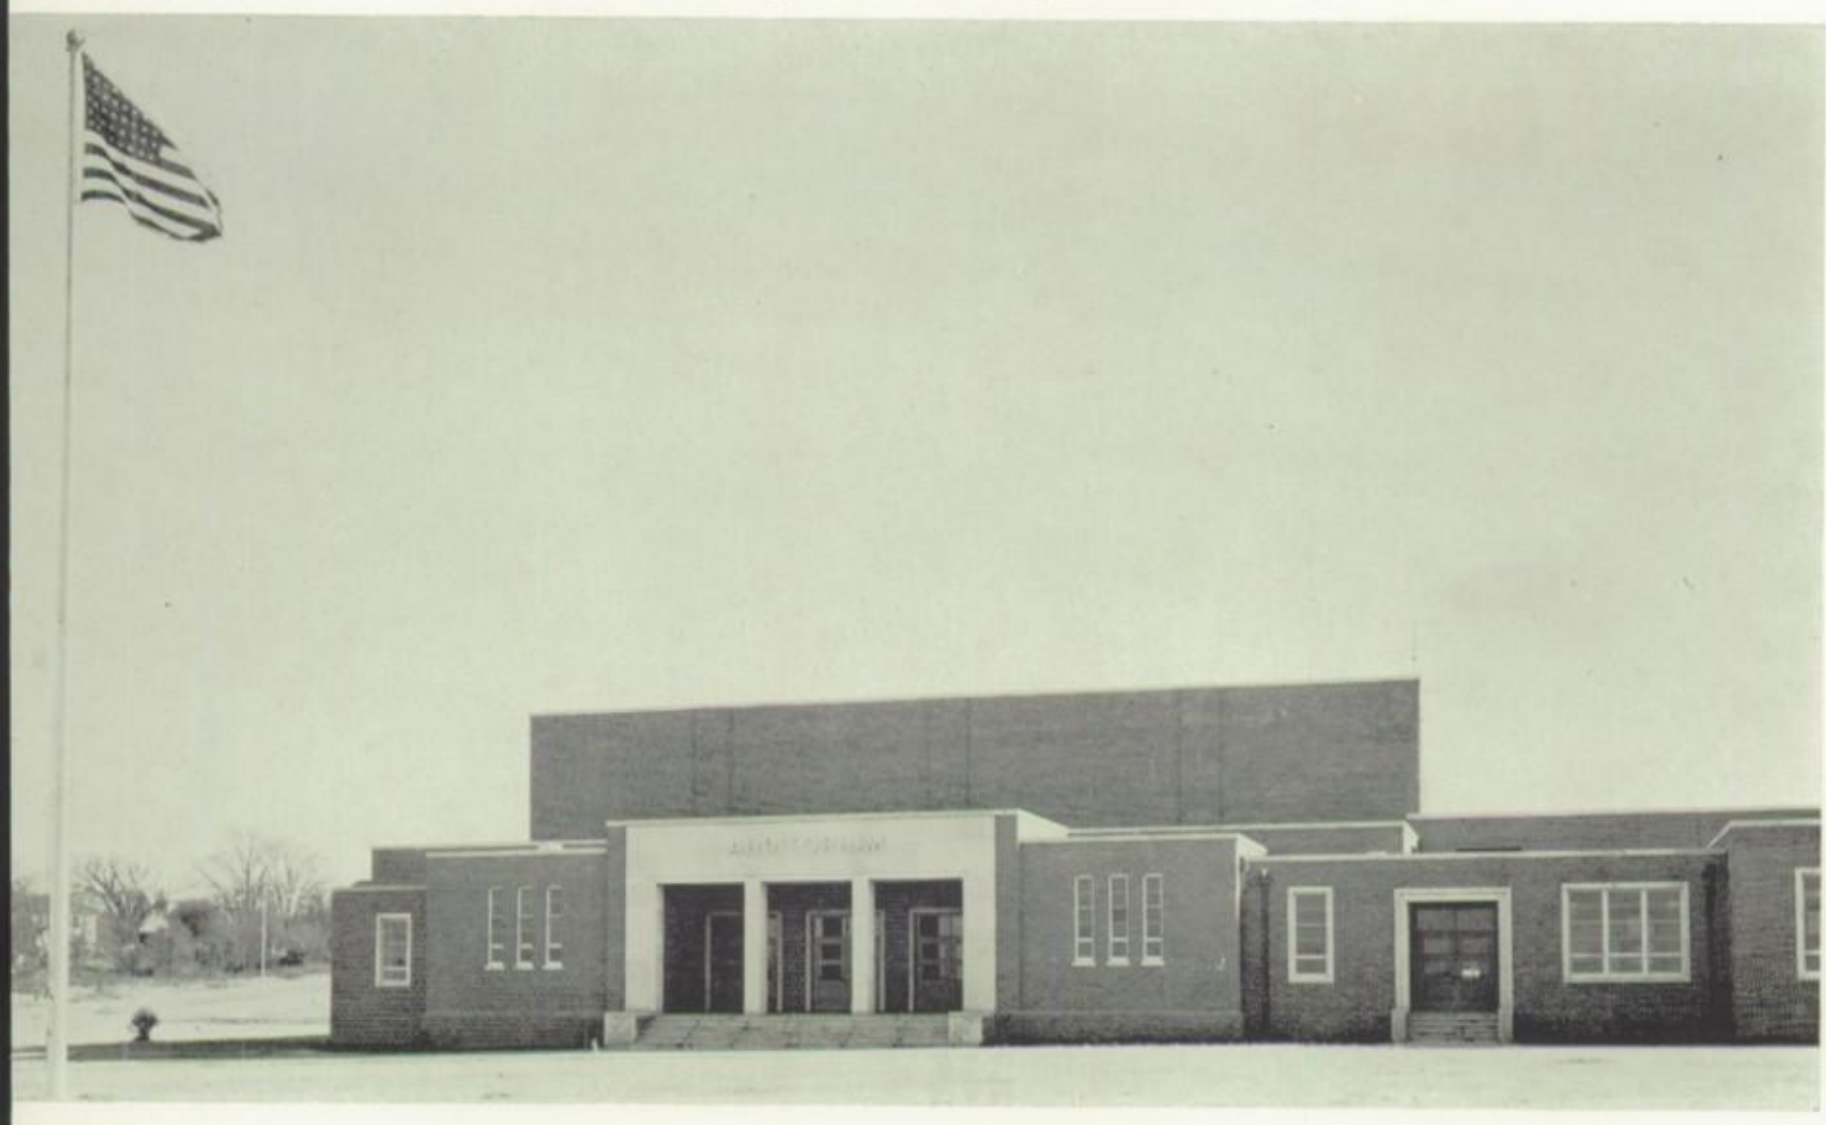
Today...

Earlene,
Best of luck to a very sweet. Stay as you are now and you will go far in life.
Always
Effie

Today some 1679 students and 76 teachers . . . a new look for the campus with the completion of both the shop building and the football Stadium . . . Kennedy and Nixon captured headlines around the nation while G. W. basketball team headlined in Danville and Virginia . . . Senior play—"The Man Who Came to Dinner" . . . Beginning of Civil War Centennial as yearbook went to press . . . Strict reappraisal of all G. W. clubs by S. C. A. . . . Spring around the corner . . . but . . . it is difficult to speak of Today, and Today is fast becoming Yesterday, and Tomorrow soon will be only hitsory.

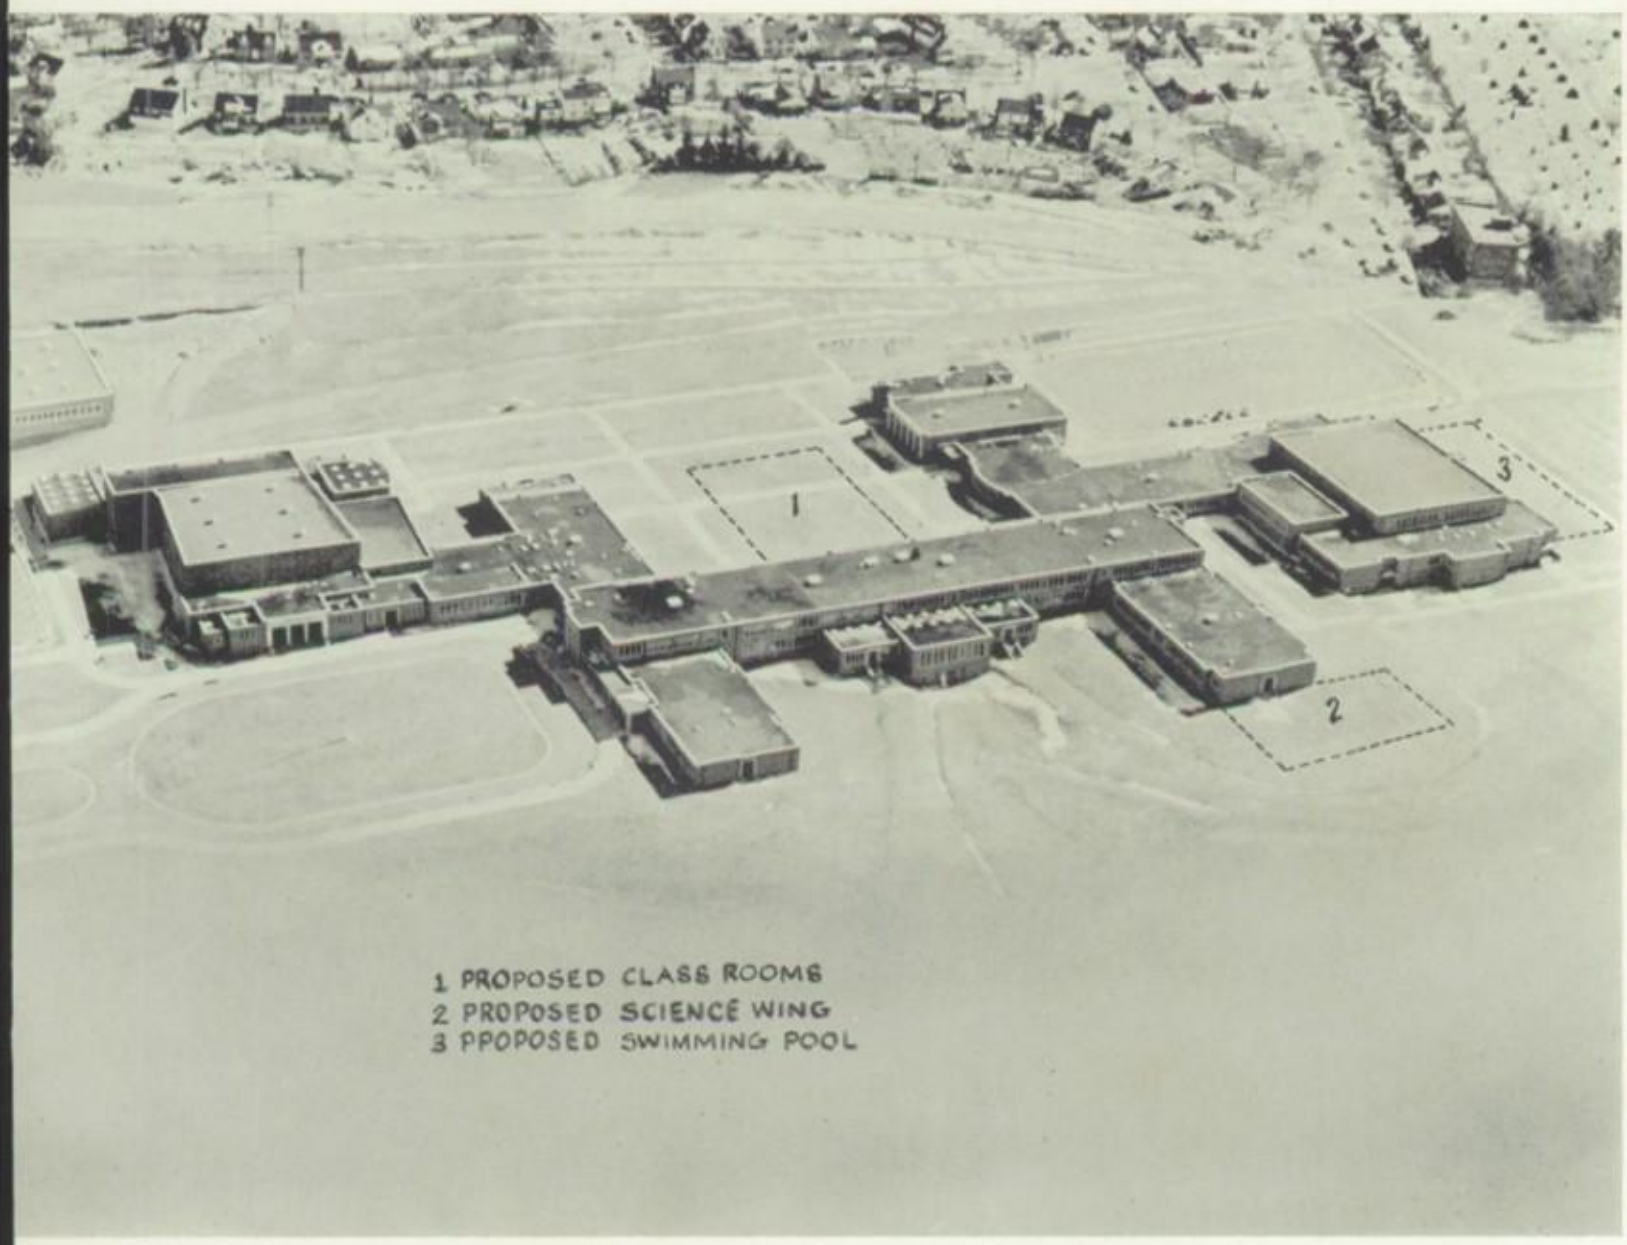
Today the Danville Confederate Memorial Building is used frequently by George Washington students, since it now houses the Danville Public Library.

Today the fifty-star flag on our campus symbolizes our allegiance to a strong, united nation.



Andra, Sheryl and Tondea Willis, accompanied by their father, Chesley Willis, have already started work on their future career by singing at many local events. We predict they will be among the many who will bring honor to their Alma Mater . . . tomorrow.

Politics plays a great part in everyone's life. G. W. students get a taste at a local political rally.



An aerial view of G. W. has been marked to show where the new classroom wing, science wing, and a swimming pool are to be built.

...Tomorrow

Tomorrow . . . a better G. W. and a better Danville . . . we of the Senior Class look forward to college . . . to the responsibilities of our life's work . . . and to the happiness of homemaking . . . but all with great anticipation . . . we who have developed deep affection for G. W. look hopefully to its future . . . Tomorrow holds much . . . but we receive only what we earn . . . we pray that the dreams of today will become the realities of Tomorrow . . .

Best wishes

OFFICE STAFF

The office duties and services constitute an integral part of student life at G.W. All absences and tardies are handled, in addition to the setting up of individual student schedules each semester. Permanent records kept here make this staff invaluable not only to the present student body but for graduates seeking further education or jobs. All teacher assignments originate here, as does supervision of the student activity program.

Front Row: Mr. Perkinson, Mrs. Spangler, Mrs. Miller, Mr. Miller.
Second Row: Mrs. Bacon, Miss Norris, Miss Trotter.
Third Row: Mrs. Aron, Mrs. Davis, Miss Fitzgerald, Mr. Thompson, Miss Dodson.

Present emphasis in the English department is on adjusting the curriculum to meet the needs and abilities of students. In this adjustment two types of students occupy the center of attention: the slow learner and the exceptionally intelligent student.

In the ninth and tenth grades courses are offered on a three-track plan; in the eleventh and twelfth grades a two-track plan is used. Such organization should better prepare students for college or for the business world after graduation from high school. College-bound students may take two semesters of creative writing and also two electives which deal with the development of the novel and drama.

Juniors and seniors are required to write two impromptu themes in addition to the regular writing. All seniors are required to score 95 on a special list of spelling words.

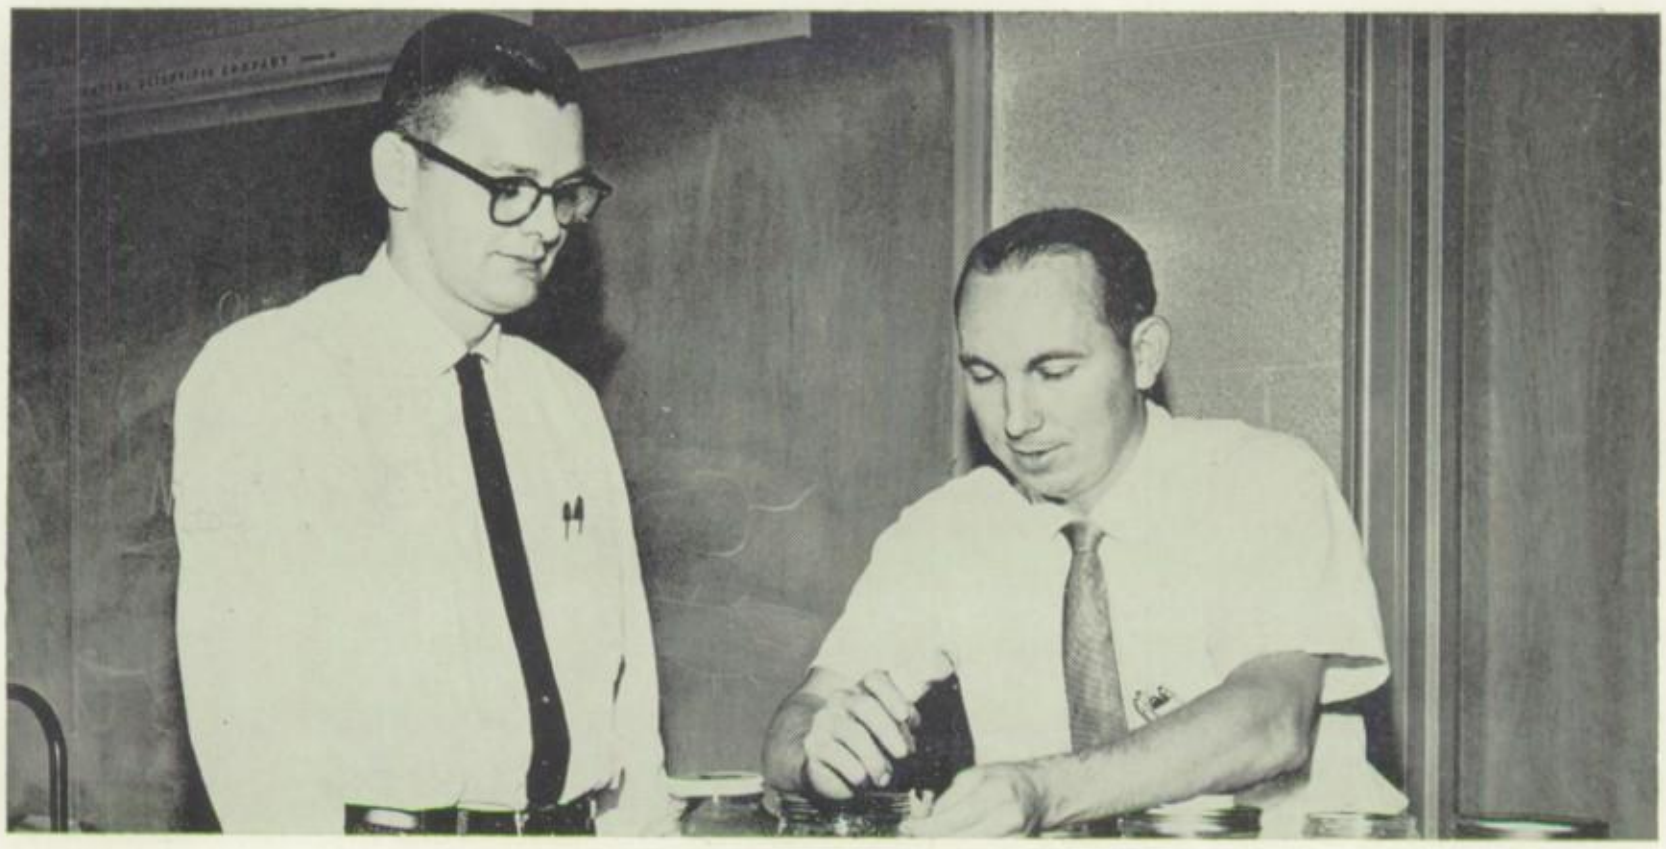
SCIENCE



Mr. Walker, Mr. Pergerson

Much thought has been given in recent years to various changes in the science programs of many high schools. The department of George Washington High School, in following this trend toward higher goals, has undertaken many and varied changes for the curriculum.

Laboratory work in the ninth grade General Science program was begun this year. Plans are now being made for general biology courses for non-college-bound students and courses of academic biology for the college bound. Plans also include general chemistry courses for the non-college students as well as college preparatory chemistry. All students taking science are encouraged to do some type of private scientific investigations. In the future it is hoped that an accellerated science course will be offered to students who have completed four years of science by the time they finish their junior year.

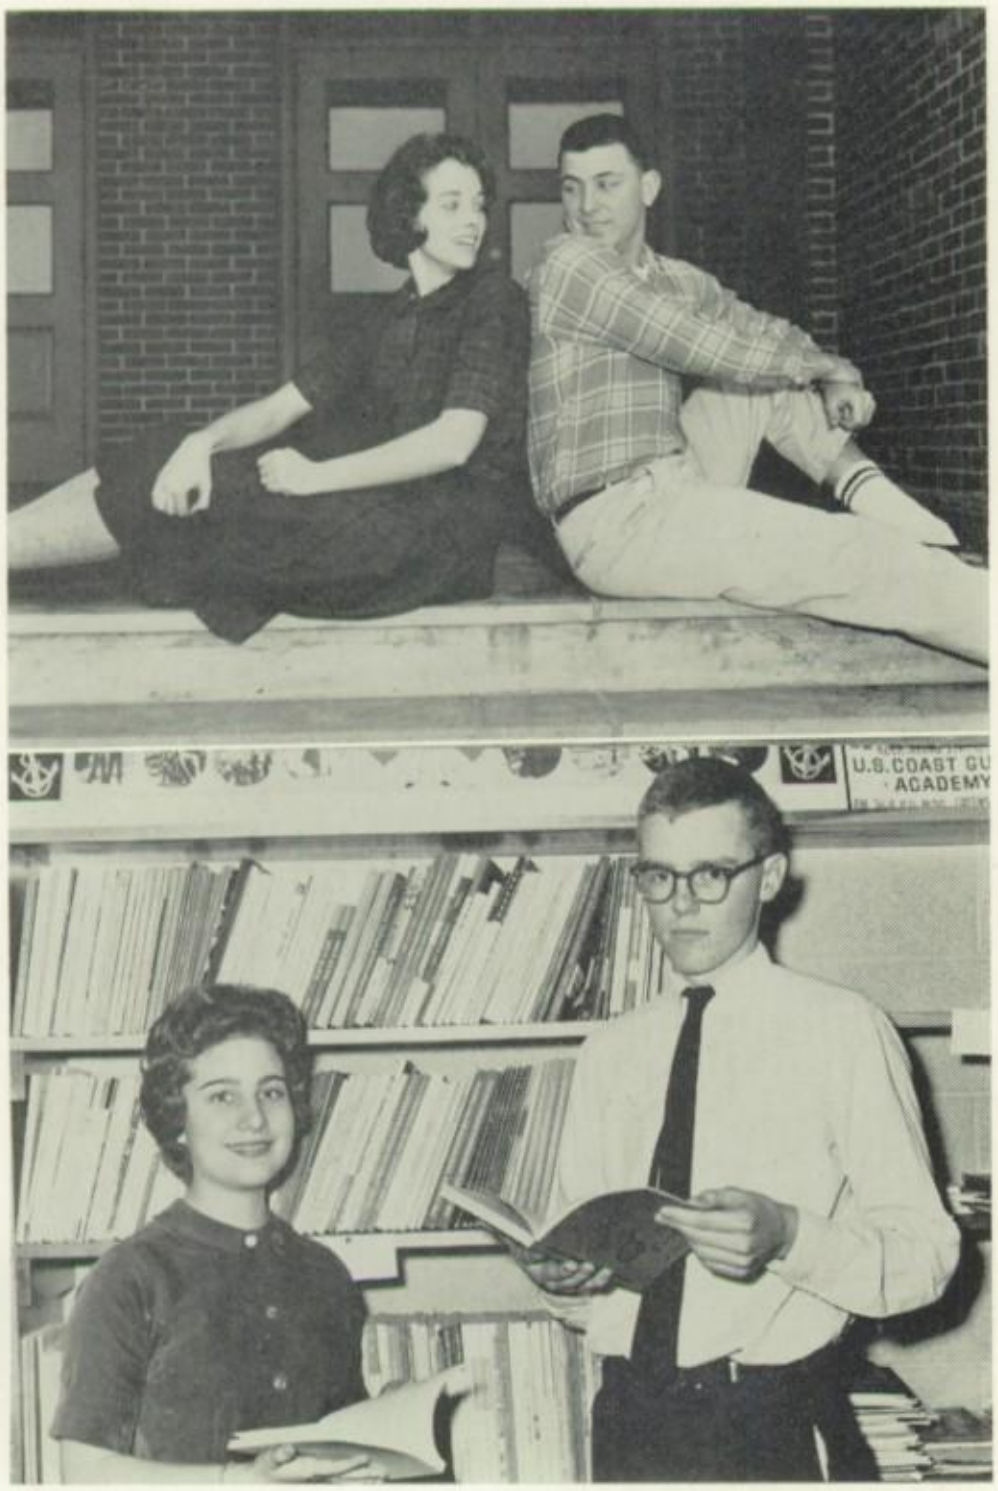
SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

Amy Haley and Glenn Wilson are shown with the world of G. W. in their hands.

Linda Beale and Jimmy Fisher try to climb through the window to escape the classroom heat, another of their versatile ideas.

Andra Willis and Harry Kolendrianos give a friendly welcome to the visitors of G. W.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT



Patsy Buckner and Joey Young can not resist our photographer as another chance to flirt.

Martha Cross and Ruddy Clement, our "most collegiate" students, look over the college catalogues in the guidance office.

Mary Lee Slaughter and Irving Blank show pep at all G. W. activities.

Mary Leigh Taylor and Glenn Wilson hold the respe of all G. W. students wherever they go.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

Amy Haley and James Jennings are our choice for typical seniors.

Anne MacClintock and Peyton McCrary are in the library defending their claim to the most intellectual title.

There are no better marble shooters than our own athletic Nibs Smith and Frankie Allen.

"What's your excuse this time?" Mr. Christopher doubts Elizabeth Clark and Zan Womack will ever make it to class on time.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

Pat Biles and Bueford Green spend many hours shopping for new clothes to wear.

Sandra Baker and Townes Lea show why they were voted the best looking seniors.

Rosalind Stembridge and Jack Turner do not really need this book to keep them so witty.

CUSTODIAL STAFF

The custodial staff, composed of 15 persons, has a wide variety of jobs at G. W. They must keep the buildings clean, make repairs, cut 40 acres of grass, provide proper lighting, lubricate all machinery, clean sidewalks, prepare for school social events, and record all heating supplies and electrical parts.

As she sits in the wheel chair in the sick room, sophomore Bernardine Arn reads an obviously interesting book as Helen Grant and Richard Dixon sneak a look at what she is reading.

Ann Martin has a busy moment in the library as she checks out books to Gay Whitehead, Jimmy Martin, Tim Montgomery, and Stan Peck.

"You'll be well soon," comforts Donna Broxson as Eddie Neal is recovering from a tough football season.

Sports, science classes, telephone gabbing, and breaks for lunch are all a part of the life of the freshmen.
